

NOTICE

What deserves to change?

Start with an idea from your UNBOUND notes that could change a real decision for your team.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > What does Marketing want to do that Creative cannot currently support: more campaign variations, faster testing, or better use of existing content?
- > Would this idea improve the work, or just increase the volume?

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

We want to ____, but today we cannot because ____.

WHERE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP HELPS

Experienced creative direction turns a marketing ambition into a focused creative opportunity.

→ Take that ambition to page 2. Find the handoff that holds it back.

LOCATE

Where does the work get stuck?

A production problem may actually be an unclear brief, conflicting feedback or a missing decision.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > Does Creative have a clear audience, message, deliverable list and definition of success?
- > Do revisions fix execution, or reveal that stakeholders never agreed on the direction?
- > Is the delay in making the work, collecting feedback or getting approval?

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

The work slows down between ___ and ___ because ___.

WHERE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP HELPS

A creative director or senior designer can trace the friction to its source and help the team agree on what needs to change.

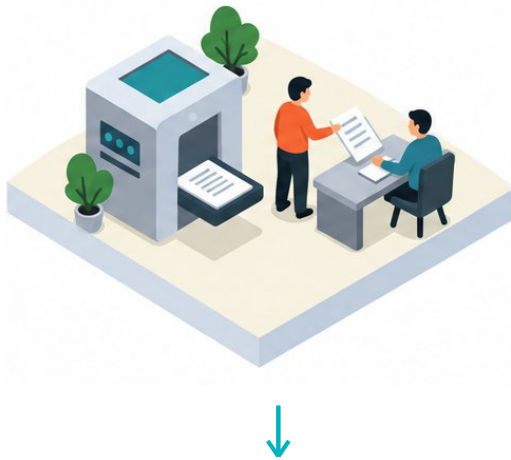

→ Take that bottleneck to page 3. Separate repeatable work from judgment.

ASSIGN

What should AI handle?

Use AI for a defined task inside a clear process. Keep a person accountable for the output.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > Could AI turn scattered requests into a first-pass brief and flag missing information?
- > Could it consolidate feedback, identify conflicting comments or draft variations from an approved concept?
- > Who owns strategy, art direction, factual accuracy and final approval?

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

AI will help with _____. A person will review it for _____.

WHERE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP HELPS

Experienced creative leadership defines the handoff and judges whether the output serves the audience, the brief and the brand.

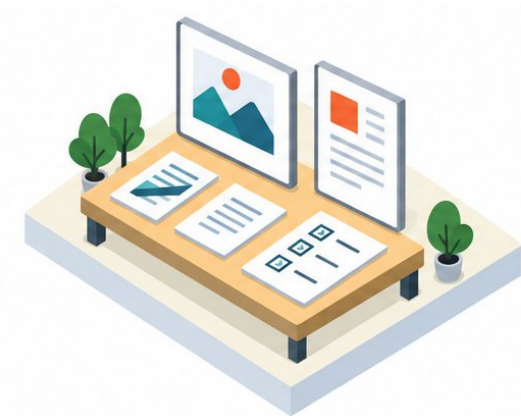

→ Take that handoff to page 4. Test it on one real piece of work.

TEST

What would make next week easier?

One small experiment gives the team something concrete to learn from.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > Try one shared brief before Creative starts.
- > Consolidate stakeholder feedback into one agreed revision list.
- > Create useful variations from one approved campaign direction. Measure revision rounds, approval time or usable variations.

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

For the next ____, we will try ____ and measure ____.

WHERE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP HELPS

A creative director or senior designer can shape a useful experiment and define what good work looks like before production starts.

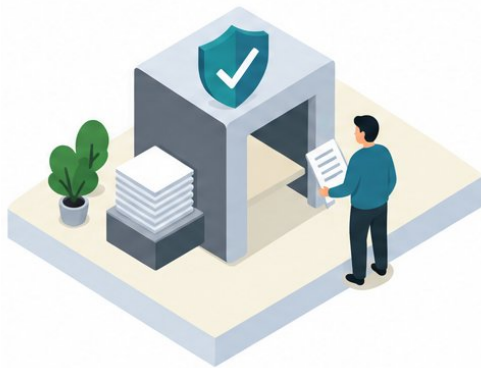

→ Take that experiment to page 5. Set the boundaries before it grows.

PROTECT

What keeps the work on brand?

Clear standards let people move faster without renegotiating quality every time.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > What approved brand examples, messages and templates should AI work from?
- > Who resolves conflicting feedback?
- > What facts, rights and brand standards must a person check before anything reaches a customer?

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

Nothing ships until ___ checks ___.

WHERE CREATIVE LEADERSHIP HELPS

Creative leadership establishes practical standards and review points so more output still looks and sounds like your brand.

→ Take those standards to page 6. Make something the team can use.

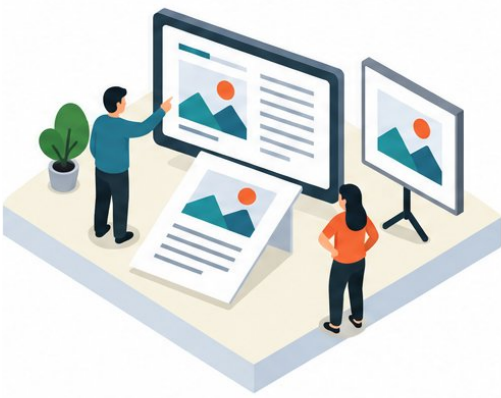

MAKE

What will you make?

Make something real enough that the team can react to it, use it and improve it.

THINK ABOUT YOUR TEAM

- > An improved brief, an approved concept with variations, or a feedback process everyone can follow?
- > What will you make, who owns it, and when will the team review it?

WRITE ONE SENTENCE

By ____, we will make ____ so the team can decide ____.

FREE 15-MINUTE CREATIVE BOTTLENECK CALL

Bring one problem. Find a practical next step.

Talk it through with Scott Vigneault, VigVibe's creative director. Request a call or email what's stuck in two sentences.

Request a free 15-minute call >

vigvibe.com/creative-bottleneck

